MESSAGE

FROM THE PRIME MINISTER OF JAPAN

I am pleased to extend a very warm welcome to all participants from around the world on this occasion of the opening ceremony of XVIIth World Economic History Congress in Kyoto.

I am happy that the congress is being held under the joint sponsorship of Science Council of Japan and International Economic History Association.

I hope that this international congress for advancement in the field of Economic History will be a great success.

SHINZO ABE
Prime Minister
Welcome Notes

Tetsuji OKAZAKI, Chair, WEHC2015 Local Organizing Committee

It is our great pleasure to welcome leading scholars from many countries and regions of the world who specialize in economic history and related fields, to the XVIIth World Economic History Congress (WEHC 2015). WEHC 2015 is an epoch-making event in that it is the first congress in Asia in the history of the WEHC. Today, Asia is regarded as one of the most important engines of growth of the world economy. For economic historians, late nineteenth century Japan was the first Asian country to experience economic growth based on modern technologies and institutions, and its post World War II economic miracle has long been seen as setting a new model of economic growth. Japan’s growth experience has been followed by many other Asian countries and regions. The Japanese and other Asian examples of rapid development have been based on a diversity of paths of development, drawing on indigenous elements of their economies, societies and cultures, while simultaneously interacting with many areas in Asia and the West. As historians we all find that this Asian rise has challenged our theories and become an important subject in our efforts to understand global patterns of development from a long-term viewpoint. Indeed, research that reconsiders Asian economic history from global perspectives has come to be one of the most active fields of research in recent years. I am certain that through presentations and academic dialogue, WEHC 2015 will offer a wonderful opportunity to extend our discussions of fundamental issues in global economic history and encourage economic history research in Japan, in Asia and in the world.

Grietjie VERHOEF, President, International Economic History Association

The warm hearts of the community of Economic and Business historians of the extended family of the International Economic History Association have gathered in the heart of historical Kyoto for the seventeenth international congress. We are privileged to have another gathering of the IEHA, especially following on from the first ever event in Africa – Stellenbosch, South Africa, in 2012. This WEHC2015 is the first meeting of the IEHA congresses in Japan, the home of a very sizeable community of Economic and Business historians. In the most picturesque comfort of the city surrounded by mountains, an opportunity has arrived for us to engage in the challenging intellectual discourse of our disciplines, the most recent research and the new perspectives emerging from such work. The opportunity to have the whole IEHA family of researchers, teachers and scholars together for a week, is a gift too precious to overlook. A week is sadly, only five days - my wish is that we will all experience the friendly hospitality of our wonderful Japanese hosts and that we will all be inspired by the occasion to strengthen our work in the interest of the greater community. I welcome you all as trusted friends, respected colleagues and leaders in society from the farthest corners of the globe to this congress. Enjoy the splendour of Japan, the refined culture of Kyoto and the sincerity of our Japanese hosts while we extend the fruits of our labour towards service to humanity. Welcome to Kyoto!

Message from His Excellency Shinzo ABE, Prime Minister of Japan

KeYnote sPeecH — plenarY 1
DAY 1 09:30-10:30 MONDAY, 3 AUGUST 1F MAIN HALL
Keynote Address His Excellency Yasuo FUKUDA, Former Prime Minister of Japan
Keynote Lecture Professor Osamu SAITO, Professor Emeritus, Hitotsubashi University, and Fellow of Japan Academy

His Excellency Yasuo FUKUDA
Yasuo Fukuda was Prime Minister of Japan from 2007 to 2008. During his time in office he focused on issues related to constructing a sustainable society, and as host of the Hokkaido Toyako G8 Summit negotiated an agreement to halve CO2 emissions by 2050. His domestic policy initiatives included the establishment of the Consumer Affairs Agency to protect consumers’ rights and efforts to see that government decision-making more effectively reflected public opinion. On the diplomatic front, former Prime Minister Fukuda has dedicated himself to building better relations with Japan’s East Asian neighbors. In 2008 Prime Minister Fukuda and Chinese President Hu Jintao issued a joint statement calling for mutually beneficial Sino-Japanese relations based on a joint understanding of common strategic interests. As Prime Minister he also promoted historical research through his promotion of the Public Records Management Act.

Professor Osamu SAITO
Osamu Saito, Professor Emeritus, Hitotsubashi University, Fellow of the Japan Academy and a past President of Japan’s Socio-Economic History Society, is an economic and population historian. He served on the Executive Committee of the International Economic History Association (IEHA) and chaired the Committee on Historical Demography of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population (IUSSP). He was Leverhulme Visiting Professor at the Cambridge Group for the History of Population and Social Structure, University of Cambridge, 2009-10. Since 2007, he has been joint organiser (with Leigh Shaw-Taylor, Director of the Cambridge Group) of the International Network for the Comparative History of Occupational Structure (INCHOS). His recent publications include ‘Proto-industrialization and labour-intensive industrialization’ (in Labour-intensive Industrialization in Global History, ed. G. Austin and K. Sugihara, 2013) and ‘Growth and inequality in the Great and Little Divergence debate’ (Economic History Review 68, 2015). In his Keynote lecture, he will talk about ‘diversity’ and ‘interdependence’ in development.
Plenary Sessions

Debate — plenary 2

Day 3 17:15-18:45 Wednesday, 5 August 2F ROOM A

Speakers
Professor Pranab BARDHAN, University of California, Berkeley
Professor R. Bin WONG, Director of the UCLA Asia Institute

Moderator
Professor Linda GROVE, Professor Emeritus, Sophia University

The second plenary session will focus on two of the world’s largest economies — China and India — from the perspectives of economic history and development economics. The rise of what Prof. Pranab Bardhan, one of our speakers, has termed the “two ‘Awakening Giants’ of Asia” continues to play a central role in shaping the twenty-first century global economy. Moreover, the experiences of China and India have also been at the heart of academic discussions in economic history and development economics — debates that have focused on the diversity of development experiences, including institutional forms, governance patterns, and their impact on contemporary development experience. We have invited two leading experts in these fields to present their views and discuss the experiences of India and China from regional, global and historical perspectives. Prof. Pranab Bardhan, speaking from the perspective of development economics, will contrast the entrepreneurial, rentier and state capitalist patterns of development in China and India with special focus on labor-intensive production in the agriculture and manufacturing sectors, infrastructural considerations, property rights and governance issues. Prof. R. Bin Wong, approaching the same issues from a long-term historical perspective, will examine patterns of change stressing the role of socially constructed institutions that shaped production and exchange and their fit with government policies.

Professor Pranab BARDHAN

Pranab Bardhan is Professor of Graduate School in the Department of Economics, University of California at Berkeley. Educated at Presidency College, Kolkata and Cambridge University, England, he had been at the faculty of MIT, Indian Statistical Institute and Delhi School of Economics before joining Berkeley. He has been Visiting Professor/Fellow at Trinity College, Cambridge, St. Catherine’s College, Oxford, and London School of Economics. He held the Distinguished Fulbright Siena Chair at the University of Siena, Italy in 2008-9 and the BP Centennial Professor at London School of Economics for 2010 and 2011. He was the Editor of the Journal of Development Economics for 18 years. He has done theoretical and field studies research on rural institutions in poor countries, on political economy of development policies, and on international trade. A part of his work is in the interdisciplinary area of economics, political science, and social anthropology. He is the author of 14 books and more than 150 journal articles and the editor of 12 books.

Professor R. Bin WONG

Wong studies Chinese patterns of political, economic and social change both within Asian regional contexts and compared with more familiar European patterns, as part of the efforts under way to make world history speak to contemporary conditions of globalization. He is author of China Transformed: Historical Change and the Limits of European Experience (1997). Wong has also written or co-authored more than ninety articles published in Chinese, English, French, German and Japanese. His most recent book, co-authored with Jean-Laurent Rosenthal, is Before and Beyond Divergence: The Politics of Economic Change in China and Europe (2011). He has been a visiting professor and researcher at institutions in China, France, Japan, and the United Kingdom. Since 2009 he has been a Distinguished Guest Professor at the Fudan University Institute for Advanced Study in Social Sciences.

The third plenary session focuses on new approaches in economic history. We have invited leading economic historians and a development economist to discuss the following broad questions: Are there new approaches that will help us better understand diversity in economic development? How might economic historians and development economists interact and collaborate in fruitful ways to advance research in this field? How can we write a diverse and complex history of global economic development with theoretical consistency and rigor?

Professor Abhijit Banerjee is a distinguished development economist. His best known contributions include a frequently cited article that models economic development as a process of institutional transformation, and an article that explores the impact of the colonial Indian land tenure system on present economic outcomes. Professor Nicholas Crafts has played a leading role in developing the field of cliometrics; his classic works on the Industrial Revolution and long-term growth of the British economy set new standards for quantitative understanding of economic growth and are frequently referred to in debates about the “great divergence.” Professor Avner Greif has developed a new game theoretic approach to economic history, Historical and Comparative Institutional Analysis, and in recent years has applied this approach to the comparative historical study of China and Europe.

Professor Abhijit BANERJEE

Abhijit Vinayak Banerjee is the Ford Foundation International Professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 2003 he founded the Abdul Latif Jameel Poverty Action Lab (J-PAL), along with Esther Duflo and Sendhil Mullainathan and remains one of the directors of the lab. In 2009 J-PAL won the BBVA Foundation “Frontier of Knowledge” award in the development cooperation category. Banerjee is a past president of the Bureau for the Research in the Economic Analysis of Development, a Research Associate of the NBER, a CEPR research fellow, International Research Fellow of the Kiel Institute, a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the Econometric Society and has been a Guggenheim Fellow and an Alfred P. Sloan Fellow. He received the Infosys Prize 2009 in Social Sciences and Economics. In 2011, he was named one of Foreign Policy magazine’s top 100 global thinkers. His areas of research are development economics and economic theory. He is the author of a large number of articles and three books, including Poor Economics which won the Goldman Sachs Business Book of the Year. He is the editor of a fourth book, and finished his first documentary film, “The Name of the Disease” in 2006. Most recently, Banerjee served on the U.N. Secretary-General’s High-level Panel of Eminent Persons on the Post-2015 Development Agenda.

Professor Nicholas CRAFTS

Nicholas Crafts is Professor of Economic History and Director of the ESRC Research Centre on Competitive Advantage in the Global Economy (CAGE) at the University of Warwick. He is a Fellow of the British Academy. His earlier career included positions at UC Berkeley, London School of Economics, Stanford and Oxford. He was Editor of the Economic History Review from 1999 to 2004 and President of the Economic History Society from 2004 to 2007. His research interests focus on comparative long-run economic growth and the economic history of the 1930s. He has published a number of books and articles, which include British Economic Growth during the Industrial Revolution, Oxford University Press (1985) and The Great Depression of the 1930s: Lessons for Today, Oxford University Press (co-edited, 2013).
Professor Avner GREIF
Avner Greif is Professor of Economics, the Bowman Family Endowed Professor in Humanities and Sciences at Stanford University, a Senior Fellow at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies (Stanford) and a Fellow in the Canadian Institute for Advance Research (CIFAR). He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a fellow of the Econometrics Society and a MacArthur Foundation Fellow. His research interests include the historical development of economic institutions, their interrelations with political, social and cultural factors and their impact on economic growth. Among his publications are Institutions and the Path to the Modern Economy: Lessons from Medieval Trade, Cambridge University Press (2006) and Analytic Narratives, Oxford University Press (co-authored 1998). Greif’s research extensively relies on the method known as historical and comparative institutional analysis which he applied for the study of Europe, the Middle East, and China.

Tate 殺陣

TATE is a style of fighting developed for use in historical dramas. The Uzumasa area of Kyoto is home to many film studios specializing in the production of historical dramas. Kurosawa’s “Rashomon” (1950) was shot there, and the art has recently culminated in the FANTASIA 2014 award-winning “Uzumasa Limelight”, a quasi-autobiographical film about the stuntman who was killed in more movies than any other stuntman playing a samurai. Volunteer to take part in a swordfight as a samurai warrior.

WaDAiko 和太鼓

A WADAiko show will be presented by “DADADA DAN TENKO”, a very popular performance group established in 1987. They have taken part in tours around the globe and have achieved world-wide success. Their energetic, as well as heart-warming, performances will provide an unforgettable end to the evening. Join in a Wadaiko workshop and learn the basics of Japanese drums from the masters of the art.

Tsugaru Shamisen 津軽三味線

SHAMISEN is a lute-like three-stringed Japanese traditional music instrument. Although the shamisen was originally introduced from China, it has evolved as a Japanese instrument since the 16th century. The Tsugaru style of shamisen performance, which developed in the Tsugaru district in northern Honshu Island is characterised by its powerful percussive way of playing a melancholic tone. Sato Michihiro, one of the world-famous players of Tsugaru Shamisen, and his group will give a performance.

Alfred Marshall introduced the concept of the industrial district in his explanation of the development of British manufacturing. Economic historians in Japan have also used the concept to analyse Japanese economic growth, and it has been widely used in understanding Smithian growth in regional economies. The city of Kyoto was not only an ancient capital of Japan, but also has been the center of advanced industrial districts throughout Japanese history. Kyoto is not only home to the well-known traditional silk-weaving industry, but also to high-tech machinery industries. Economic historians, beginning with Marshall, have usually characterized industrial districts as centers of a particular industry, but Kyoto is unusual in being the center of a mixture of specialized forms of production.

This seminar explores the complexity of manufacturing in this Kyoto industrial district. Tomoko HASHINO (Kobe University), a leading economic historian, will kick off the debate with an historical overview of the city from the perspective of industrial concentration. Her presentation will be followed by talks by two eminent businessmen, Shigehiko HATTORI (Shimadzu Corporation) and Masatoshi TAKEDA (crossEffect, Inc.) who will discuss the present and future of Kyoto industry. The three speakers will then be joined by Akimasa YAMASHITA, vice-governor of Kyoto Prefecture, in a round-table discussion. Takao SHIBA (Kyoto Sangyo University), a specialist in Kyoto business history, will moderate the seminar.

This seminar will be held in Japanese, and is open to the general public, in an effort to encourage greater communication between the academic community and members of the local community.
